Optimized for Cloud-Based Web Apps

The Best thing about new MVC 6 is that it is less dependent on System.Web.Dll. It requires less system memory to handle requests compared to the previous versions. Being cloud-optimised it also offers greater flexibility like using a simple mono CLR of the website. This allows running different CLR versions for different websites. This also helps developers do away with the constraint of system specific configuration.

Effortless Development with a very User-Friendly Compiler

The new Asp.net MVC 6 comes loaded with highly sophisticated Roslyn Compiler. Thanks to this compiler nobody needs to compile application code as the codes are compiled into the app automatically. This results in automatic changes following the refreshing of the browsers.

An Inclusive Solution for Web Development

The most formidable thing about this new framework is that it is truly inclusive framework that takes care of the implementation of several features. While MVC, Web API and Web Pages all had several similar and common features, they differ in implementation. Now under the ASP.NET MVC 6 all three elements respectively as MVC, Web API and Web Pages basically accessed and deployed as part of a single framework. With the set of abstractions present in the framework, developers can maintain the tasks easily.
